

PHOTOS: MALCOLM McCLUSKEY

■ INNOVATIVE: Left, Zac Pridmore and his table

Designing students show off their skill

STUDENTS had the chance to show off their design, not to mention their organisational skills, at an exhibition.

Those studying AS level product design, at Littlehampton Community School, put on a display to celebrate the end of the course.

Ben Hudson was one of the four students who organised the event. "We decided we wanted to let everyone know what we had been working on for the last year.

"It was held outside, because we wanted it to be a bit different, and a fair number of people came.

"We showed our products at all stages of the design process to give people an idea of how we came to the final item."

Ben's product was a two-legged table, which reclined and featured fresh leaves.

Neil Pollock, a teacher at the school, said a big "well done" to all the students involved. "The staff are proud to see the practical and original products they have created."

Ben added that he hoped the exhibition would become an annual event.

L28565P8

■ THE LIGHTER

S sussex stationery
BRITISH MADE

2008

Back to School

SYSTEM Starter Art
RRP £9.25
OUR PRICE £6.94

PENCIL CASES
Floral & Digital Camo
RRP £3.99
OUR PRICE £2.99

REFILL
A4 Feint

CRAYOLA
RRP £1.25
OUR PRICE 79p

COLLINS
English Dictionary & Thesaurus